Dear Brian:

I have written to you several times before, usually to complain or criticize. This time I am writing to say I thanks for C-Span. I am really enjoying the Alexis de Touqueville series.

As an eighty-two year old African-American lifelong volunteer and history buff I spend a great deal of my time attempting to research and dispensing the knowledge about my people's place in history.

I am currently attempting to locate towns or communities around the country established by African Americans. I hear there are about 200 such sites. If you have any such knowledge please

O.Tocq
