

Wednesday, January 8, 1994

C Span 2
Washington, D.C.

Attn: Brian Lamb

I write to you because your name is most familiar to me when I watch C Span 1 and 2. I wish to call in many times but either do not know the correct procedure or do it wrong. I don't know which. Could I be enlightened somehow?

I watched, on Friday, January 7th, C Span's coverage of a radio program hosted by someone named Imus. I admit it I kept it on and watched the whole thing though tempted many times to switch it off. I am not a radio listener and most probably never will be after that performance by Mr. Imus.

I was appalled by this man - hurling insults, cursing, mouthing off, name it, he did it. Do people like this stuff? How does he get away with it? Who pays him for this stuff? There were some commercials - I guess this is where the money comes from. I won't buy their products when I find out who pays him, you bet.

It was enlightening to say the least. I think the most important thing he wanted to discuss was whether he should date women young enough to be his daughter. Where are the minds of these women who date him - gone I think. I assume that is why the psychiatrist was a guest - she was something else too. Paid for also.

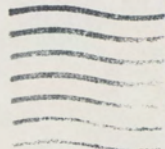

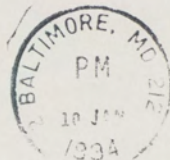

Where are all the decent people in this world? <sup>but</sup> Gone? Where are the people who could do a news broadcast on the radio with/ranting, raving, insulting, etc.? There must be some somewhere? He paid no attention to the assistant who kept repeating "Shut UP" Shut Up" Shut UP.

Well I've had my say and feel better for it --chuck it out or send it to Imus. I would have myself only the address was difficult to decipher and too fast to catch. That's another problem.

A fan of C Span

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]
Balto., MD 21219

Attn: Brian Lamb

C Span

400 North Capital Street Northwest
Washington, D. C.

25551-1511 12

