

Dec. 13-'99

O-Amur-Pros

Dear Brian -

I feel compelled to Remark on the program covering the entries for the Presidential Contest - fast forward to the point where the portrait (picture) of Clinton is on screen - The strange color of his shirt caught my eye and then when the camera closed in on his face I was jarred in memory to 1945 when the Picture of Dorian Gray impressed me greatly -

The close-up was a shocker and you Brian said "what do you think the artist is trying to say?"

Oscar Wilde wrote the book - Hollywood brought it to the screen in black and white but the final scene is in color - The picture (Portrait) of a young Doran Gray turned into a shocking horrible face full of pustules - warts and other yuk -

My short term memory leaves much to be desired but I was amazed at myself when I could name the year - 1945 - & the title of the movie - at 80 years I was thrust back to 26 years of age and knew what the artist was trying to say - and did it in a prize winning manner -

I've said it before - I'll say it again -

THANKS FOR C-SPAN

Warm Regards -

Bayfield, WI
54814

