Dear Mr. Lamb,

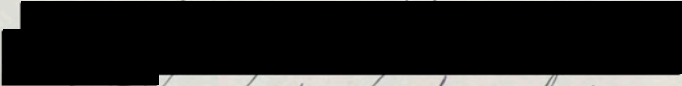

I recently spent a week in Washington with the Close-Up Program, for New Americans. I took a Cambodian girl and a Chinese boy. They were with students from large urban areas, such as New York, Chicago and Houston. This was an enlightening experience for them. They also learned a great deal about American Government. The opportunity to sit down and talk to their Senators and Representative was something they never expected to happen. Another benefit of the week was the exposure they had to the other cultures represented among the other students. They learned how to get along with and work with a diverse group of people.

I feel this will benefit them greatly when they are in the work force.

Please continue your support for Close-Up because the good they do will continue long after the week in Washington is over.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Close-Up Teacher
