Dear Mr. Brian Lamb:

From this pile of notes I made from your programs from the past couple of weeks I could write several pages, but I won't.

Your interviews, as usual, went brilliantly.

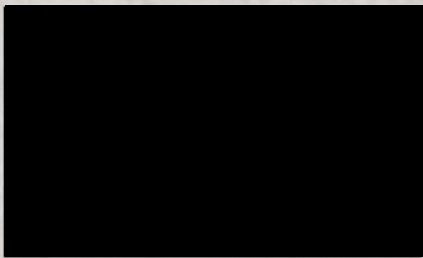

But William F. Buckley did make you work harder than usual. I remember his beginnings, and I feel sad to see him, seemingly, to be in decline.

Thanks for your good use of captions.

I must comment on Professor Lester Thurow (MIT). At first I found him entertaining, and later, after I realized the importance and enormity of his subject, I made an audio recording from a later replay. I also ordered a transcript because I never caught his beginnings.

After studying the transcript I will ask his advice on how his books may help me expand this knowledge for me.

As you can see, for me your programming is valuable!
