Greetings and Salutations,

Please allow me to express my appreciation to C-Span for getting me back into American citizenship. For too many years I had been complacent to the activities and actions of my government. I am ashamed to make this admission.

I have been a faithful viewer for approximately 3 months to date. I have enjoyed your coverage, the issues and the answers. I commend the attempt of neutrality with your interviewers. I especially admire Brian and Susan. They present themselves clearly and intelligently, not to displace the aesthetics of looking and listening to Susan.

If you would be so kind, I would appreciate information as to the theory, practices and ideas behind George Bushs' "NEW WORLD ORDER".

I have received mixed feelings and beliefs on this request from other sources, and would like to hear the truth. The information at hand, contains theories of conspiracy, secret soceity, "cashless soceity" (being tested at Paris Island Marine base - South Carolina) and "Big Brother" control.

This is a frightening thought that our national leader could be following such thoughts. Please advise...

I have enclosed some documents to corroborate these ideas.

I would also like to know the background and meaning for the symbol (pyramid, seeing eye and "NOVUS ORBO SECLORUM) on the back of our one dollar bill.

An "A" for effort. You have my best wishes and highest regard.

Congressman Ron Paul

Monday morning

Dear Fellow American:

The Wall Street Journal laughed when I predicted, in 1988, that the coming Bush administration would bring us recession and war.

They're not laughing now. And no one will be laughing when we get the "monetary reforms" I also foresee.

Imagine: you're watching the late news on TV, and just before the sign-off, the anchorman reads an emergency notice from the Secretary of the Treasury:

> Warning! As of midnight tonight, $50 and $100 Federal Reserve notes--the currency of drug dealers and money launderers--are no longer legal tender.
> American citizens and resident aliens have 72 hours to exchange these high-denomination bills at their bank, S&L, or credit union. Detailed identification must be provided, and anyone seeking to exchange more than $1,000 must fill out IRS form 666.

That's what the World Bank advised Mikhail Gorbachev to do, and that's how he stole the pathetic savings of the Russian people--to Establishment applause.

For us, the Trilateralists and their wholly owned politicians plan the New Money. And then something worse.

I'll never forget the day I closed the door to my Congressional office, sat down, and saw the New Money designs. They made my skin crawl: garish colors blighted with holograms, diffraction gratings, metal ribbons, and chemical alarms.

Federal Reserve Notes are bad enough. This stuff looked like Hitler had designed it.

Ever since that day, I've followed this scheme, and cheered when bureaucratic tangles slowed the government down. (As Charles F. Kettering once said, "Thank God we don't get all the government we pay for.")

I've watched the New Money plant being built in Ft. Worth. This top-secret facility is designed to produce train loads of greenbacks. Or pinkbacks.

I've watched as delivery of the new high-speed currency printing presses was delayed by a strike (one time I was pro-union!), a delay that ended with the strike settlement last December.

I've watched the Treasury test various batches of New Money paper produced by the Crane Paper Company of Dalton, Massachusetts. And I watched when the Treasury asked Crane, just the other day, to produce massive quantities of metal-embedded, plastic-threaded New Money paper.

The government's dream is coming true, which means a nightmare for us. But you don't have to sleep in the bed the government's made for you. You can protect yourself and your family with the Ron Paul Investment Letter, the only financial advisory written by a former high government official, one--moreover--who never turned his coat and left the American side.

And for your $99 subscription, I'll send you $131 in free bonuses, including The Ron Paul Money Book. In this unique work, I tell you about our dollar: its history, its proper role, its perversion, and its future. And how you can protect yourself from the government's dollar shenanigans. IMPORTANT: this $25 book is yours to keep no matter what.

There are good Americans in all government agencies, even the IRS and the Federal Reserve. I got to know them when I served in Congress, and I've kept in close touch ever since. These heroes--for they are nothing less--want you to know the truth, and they know I will not betray them. So they tell me about the nasty surprises the feds plan for us. Like the New Money.

The feds claim the New Money is an anti-counterfeiting device. And there's a certain amount of plausibility to that. Just as the IRS wants the monopoly of theft, so the Fed wants the monopoly of depreciating our dollar. But as justification for the New Money, it's eyewash. The government's own statistics show private counterfeiting to be at an all-time low.

What the feds actually want is total surveillance. That's why the New Money will be electronically traceable. And it's why, when you go to the bank to exchange your old cash, you will be put on an IRS list if you hand over more than $1,000.

This is exactly the kind of information you must have to survive.

The government doesn't want you to have it, of course. But I believe you have a right to privacy from your nosy brother-in-law. How much more do you have a right to privacy from the federal sharks?

The government wants to strip us bare, and that's why their ultimate plan is not the New Money, but the "cashless society" to effortlessly track and tax every dime.

The path to 100% electronic money is the "Americard." As Establishment lawyer Harvey Wachsman explained in the New York Times, first the government will "eliminate cash" by "changing the color of the currency, and requiring all old money to be exchanged."

Then, after the New Money has done its work, we will be issued an Americard, "biomechanically impregnated with the owner's hand and retina prints." This will, says Wachsman, smash the underground economy and enable the government to collect hundreds of billions in new taxes.

Bureaucratic daydreaming? The government is already running a cashless-society test. At the giant U.S. Marine base on Paris Island, South Carolina, no cash may be used. Each Marine is issued a "smartcard" and his pay is electronically entered on it. He must use the card to pay for everything he buys, from haircuts to magazines to movies. On its computers, the government can thus trace every cent, and maintain a "Total Financial Profile" of each Marine.

The TFP is designed for us too. Thank goodness you can protect yourself. Each month in my Investment Letter, I show you exactly how--from where to park your cash to what stocks to buy; from opening a legal overseas bank account to buying gold without a "paper trail" (also legally); from investing in foreign currencies to avoiding bank failures; from dealing with the IRS to handling lawyers; from shorting stocks to selling rare coins; from the dangers of "money laundering" to steps you can and must take now to protect your remaining privacy.

Note: some of my gold stock picks, for example, have been humdingers, but a short-term profit is not the purpose of this letter. I show you how to survive, and prosper, long-term.

And that's not all. Because the government threatens our freedom as well as our money, I also publish the Ron Paul Political Report, a $50 monthly that you get free of charge when you subscribe to my Investment Letter (along with the free Ron Paul Money Book and other bonuses.)

If there were a small, secretive country club that produced two of our last three presidents (Jimmy Carter and George Bush), and most of their top officials, from Paul Volcker and Alan Greenspan to Zbigniew Brzezinski and Colin Powell, the press would want to know: How do you become a member? What goes on at the meetings? And a million other questions.

But because that country club is the Trilateral Commission--a globalist cabal of politicians, plutocrats, and professors--it's not "respectable" to ask.

But I ask, and I give you the answers that, as a patriotic American, you have a right to know. After all, this group--founded and headed by David Rockefeller--is too powerful to ignore. It seeks the New Money and the cashless society, the end of American independence in a New World Order, the crushing of our liberties, the shackling of our economy, the raising of our taxes through a world IRS, and ultimately, a world central bank and world electronic currency.

"Most countries," said a 1977 Trilateral report, "live in a mental universe which no longer exists--a world of separate nations." They must be forced to think "in terms of global interdependence."

Zbigniew Brzezinski of Columbia University, the Trilateral's first executive director and Jimmy Carter's national security advisor, said that the "custodian" of the "international system" must be a "transnational elite of international businessmen, scholars, and public officials" unhampered by "national concerns."

At one time, wrote Trilateralist Samuel Huntington of Harvard, the president could "govern the country with the cooperation of a small number of Wall Street lawyers and bankers." But this is no longer possible. Americans now question the "legitimacy of hierarchy, coercion, discipline, secrecy, and deception." We no longer feel "the compulsion to obey" those of "superior rank."

The Trilateral Commission exists, in Huntington's words, to make sure the government is "guided" by the "important businesses, banks, law firms, foundations, and media, which constitute the private establishment."

George Herbert Walker Bush is, of course, of superior rank in that private Establishment, and as such he is a member of the Trilateral's executive committee. Bush's father, Prescott Bush, was another important Insider, a Wall Street investment banker, and a U.S. senator from Connecticut who worked with the evil Earl Warren to steal the 1952 Republican presidential nomination from Sen. Bob Taft.

The Rockefellers funded Bush's Zapata oil company in Texas, and contributed heavily to his 1980 and 1988 presidential campaigns. As David Rockefeller told the Washington Post in 1979, "He's my man!" Only Bush could "pull together the people in the country who believe that we are in fact living in One World and have to act that way."

But I don't believe in "One World," and I'll bet you don't either. I like the old American republic, independent and free, not a mere subdivision of the New World Order. I like our Constitution, not the U.N. Charter. And I like free American citizens, not serfs.

Thanks to Fed manipulation of the 1980s, we are in a bad recession--exactly as I predicted. General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler are losing billions. IBM has flopped. The 7-11 stores have taken a big gulp of insolvency. McDonnell Douglas laid off 17,000 workers--in one day. Banks are failing at the highest rate since the 1930s. The Bank of New England imbroglio will cost us $3 billion, and it's only the beginning. Eastern Airlines disintegrated. Pan American filed for bankruptcy. The dollar is dropping at home and overseas, despite spurious and sporadic rallies.

The governors of 28 states declare what one of them calls "financial martial law." Municipalities from Colorado to Pennsylvania default on their debt. Company bankruptcies zoom. Commercial and residential real estate falls down a hole.

More than 100 insurance companies went belly up last year, and as many as 34 of the big life insurance companies will fail in a long recession, says American Express. The core rate of inflation is an astounding 10%. Ahead are much higher prices, and much less real income for the people who pay them.

The Bush administration has just opened--as a start--a $70 billion drawing account at the Federal Reserve for the FDIC. The agency that allegedly insures our bank accounts is broke, and now it can write checks directly on the printing press, something unheard of since the Great Depression. The S&L mess is getting worse, with an eventual cost of $1.4 trillion. As for the banks, the sky's the limit.

The Bush administration has other "solutions" as well: the biggest tax increase in history; more money for IRS "enforcement"; more borrowing ($500 billion this year alone); the biggest domestic spending increases since FDR; attacks on our financial privacy; a choking new environmental bureaucracy; industry-destroying regulations; civil rights for AIDS carriers and bums; no rights for the middle class; bigger budgets for every bureau in Washington; more central bank inflation; and much more welfare.

That's champagne-cork-popping time for the government and its special interests that cluster around D.C. like flies around a garbage can. But it's bad news for you and me.

That's why I want to rush you my Money Book as well as my Investment Letter and Political Report.

In Congress, I never joined the gang, nor took one of those plush jobs reserved for ex-Congressmen. I refused to be owned. And because I am independent, I can let you in on the information, insights, and sources I developed in all my years in public life. I know where the political bodies are buried. That ought not to have any economic value, but in these days of big government, it does.

The Founding Fathers established a government to protect our rights. Today, it steals our freedom and our money, and makes King George III look like a good guy.

They want to oppress you, while living it up at your expense. But you don't have to play along. That's why I want to send you my two newsletters for one year--plus the Ron Paul Money Book--for only $99, with a no-risk money-back guarantee. And if you decide you don't want the newsletters, keep the Ron Paul Money Book and the other bonuses with my compliments!

As a member of a despised, non-affirmative action minority--Americans who have worked hard and saved--you're a target of the IRS, the Fed, the Congress, the "welfare rights" lobby, and the rest of the gang.

But you and I aren't sheep, and we won't stand still to be fleeced. That's why I protect middle-class Americans and their savings from the federal shears.

The politicians and their Establishment cronies won't be happy until they own you lock, stock, and barrel. And you'll be wearing the barrel.

My Money Book, Investment Letter, and Political Report will help you ensure the long-term survival--and enhancement--of your money, your privacy, and your freedom.

Each month I will give you the trustworthy information, analysis, and recommendations you need to protect yourself in the spastic economy of the 1990s.

For just $99, you will get $230 worth of private, wealth-saving intelligence (a 57% discount): 1) The Ron Paul Money Book ($25); 2) The Ron Paul Investment Letter ($100); 3) The Ron Paul Political Report ($50); 4) The phone number of my Weekly Financial Hotline for fast-breaking news and analysis ($50); and 5) The Ron Paul Primer: A Manual for Precious Metal Investors ($5).

Send your check for $99 today, or call my toll-free number to use your credit card. And there is no risk.

If you ever feel my Investment Letter and the Political Report are not indispensable, just let me know. I'll immediately send you a full refund on all unmailed copies, and you can keep the Ron Paul Money Book, the Hotline phone number, and the Primer!

Send your check today, or charge your order by credit card (by mail or on my toll-free 800 number). I want to welcome you as a subscriber.

Sincerely,

Ron Paul

Congressman Ron Paul

P.S. Barron's once accused me of "teaching people to profit from the Apocalypse." But you have a right to protect yourself, and I make no apology for helping you do it.

P.P.S. My closest associates tell me, "Ron, you don't need the money and you don't need the trouble. Forget all this." But our country, and our way of life, are in jeopardy. The noose is getting tighter. You and I must make sure a remnant survives, and that you are in that remnant.
