

Dear C-Span: Apr. 27, 1994

How good of you to cover the Richard Nixon pre-funeral and funeral for those of us who have great admiration for him.

Of course he had and still has his detractors.
Those of us who are politically passionate don't change our deep feelings upon a president's death. It would be in better faith if one would keep his or her silence and allow admirers and mourners to have their say.

There were so many that loved him, I suppose it was too much for those who felt otherwise. There was and is a "silent majority."

I'm pleased our present president utilized his great talent & he may have some sympathy for, and understanding of, the deep hostility held against both of them. There was that kinship, I'm sure.

I believe we should honor our leaders with pageantry in death. Our people honor royalty & their pageantry, and I believe it serves a useful purpose. It was touching and edifying, and I thank you.

Sincerely,
