att. Brian Lamb,

Please bring on remarkable personalities like Paul Greenberg.

I felt he is sound, and consistent; however unfortunately the unsecure Clinton supporters feel so shaky about their candidate that they are willing to squash an opposing or at best a critical opinion in order to reassure themselves. I felt sad for Clinton, because, if he is backed by such a mentally volatile group, his base is really not a match for the big bang his supporters are going to get from Perot.

Finally, I felt glad that you resisted these unshakables by reassuring them that you will provide diversity. Paul Greenberg was also a good choice. Please give more attention to diversity as a necessary dose of political medicine in order to ~~expose~~ the increasing ineffective merger between Republicans and Democrats.

We need honest, straight forward, non-"santa claus," hard working for America's future political leadership.
Sincerely,

P.S. Your network makes T.V. an informative educational instrument. My dissatisfaction with the media is they have become promoters of political travesty, a circus for Dems. and Reps. instead of being watchful critical observers and informers.
