NEW C-SPAN SURVEY INDICATES STRONG SUPPORT FOR SENATE TV

77 Favor Continued Coverage; Seventeen Oppose It

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- On Tuesday, July 29, the U.S. Senate is scheduled to begin consideration of the resolution that makes television coverage of its proceedings permanent. A new C-SPAN survey indicates overwhelming support among Senators for continuing the televised debates.

Seventy-seven members of the Senate told C-SPAN recently they will "vote yes" or "are leaning toward" a positive vote. Seventeen Senators indicated they would "vote no" or are "inclined to vote against" the television resolution; four Senators declared themselves undecided on the issue; while two (Sens. Lautenberg and Eagleton) declined to respond.

This new C-SPAN survey indicates an increase by ten over the sixty-seven Senators who voted on February 27 for the resolution that brought television and radio coverage to the Senate chamber for an initial trial period.

The test of televised debates began on June 2; since that date, the C-SPAN cable network has picked up live telecasts from the chamber, offering them in "gavel-to-gavel" format over a programming service called "C-SPAN II."

C-SPAN II is offered free-of-charge to cable systems across the United States that already carry C-SPAN's primary network of public affairs programming. To date, approximately 8.2 million cable homes are able to tune in to live Senate debates over C-SPAN II and more than 300 cable systems have elected to add C-SPAN II to their channel line-up. C-SPAN's original programming channel, including the U.S. House, is now seen in more than 25.5 million homes.

The Senate television provision (S.Res. 28, as amended) calls for up to 12 hours of debate on the issue; once debate has ended on July 29, Senators may vote to continue the coverage, turn the cameras off, or extend the length of the television test period.

The Senate Rules Committee, headed by Sen. Charles Mathias (R-MD), met on July 17 to discuss broadcast coverage of the chamber. During the session, panel members discussed several concerns, including:

- ° cost of installing a permanent television system.
- ° effectiveness of the chamber's present technical set up.
- ° limitation of commercial and political uses of Senate tapes.
- ° revision of the rules under which Senate business is conducted.

The Rules Committee meets again on July 24 to continue its review of radio and television coverage of the Senate.

Since the television test began on June 2, C-SPAN officials report a highly favorable reaction from press and public alike.

"Coverage of the Senate is great," a small-business person in Melbourne Village, FL told C-SPAN recently. "It's important for us to get both pictures, not just the House."

The U.S. Senate on Television

... C-SPAN Viewers React

"I hope the Senate . . . (keeps) the TV coverage, because I'm sure there are a lot of people who think the way I do—they'd like to be able to see and judge for themselves."

—a recent retiree (F) in Dayton, OH

"Coverage of the Senate is great! . . . It's important for us to get both pictures—not just the House."

—a small-business person (F)
in Melbourne Village, FL

"I've watched the House for years. They're funny . . . a little rambunctious. The Senate seems much more dignified. I have it on all day. (Now), I'm much more involved and write letters constantly. It's real important to me."

—a housewife in Middleton, CO, who worked on the Gary Hart presidential campaign and tapes
C-SPAN to send to school with her 16-year-old daughter

"I think (the Senate is) beautiful. The door's been closed for years and now they've finally opened it."

—an auto worker (M) in Youngstown, OH

"I enjoyed the Tax Reform Bill very much. I watched it from its inception—I watched—what is it 118 hours? I watched the whole thing!"

—a retiree (M) in Glendale, CA

"I'm totally fascinated. I can't believe there's a discussion about taking them (the Senate) off the air, I think as a public citizen we have a right to see our politicians in action."

—a free-lance interior designer (F)
in Clarkston, MI

C-SPAN II

"I've been dying to watch the Senate—they have more time to deliberate, discuss. . . ."

—a retired executive secretary (F)
in Mobile, AL

" . . . I have written to both my senators urging them to vote for permanent coverage of the Senate proceedings in the future."

—a viewer (M) in Plano, TX

"I feel like I'm in a theater. . . . theater-in-the-round!"

—a retired dress buyer (F) and political
activist in Hartford, CT

"Now that the Senate is on, I find myself procrastinating studying even more so I can watch. . . . The debate seems to be so much more lively. . . ."

—an American Government major (M) at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, MN
—C-SPAN is sometimes used in his classes

" . . . best of all it (the Senate coverage) is an educational program—a scan of hope for our future political leaders."

—a viewer (F) in Bristol, CT

"We need (C-SPAN's coverage) to get rid of the mystique in government."

—a medical technologist (M)
in Phoenix, AZ

"I do enjoy the Senate. (It's) much smaller and you can recognize faces. I do a lot of VCR taping when I can't be here to see something I want to see."

—a retired civil servant (M)
in Alexandria, VA

"I can't describe the sense of pride I felt in an institution that I'd given up on—let me correct that—two institutions I'd given up on: Television and the U.S. Senate."

—a viewer (M) in Colorado Springs, CO

The U.S. Senate on Television

... C-SPAN Viewers React

"I hope the Senate . . . (keeps) the TV coverage, because I'm sure there are a lot of people who think the way I do—they'd like to be able to see and judge for themselves."

—a recent retiree (F) in Dayton, OH

"Coverage of the Senate is great! . . . It's important for us to get both pictures—not just the House."

—a small-business person (F)
in Melbourne Village, FL

"I've watched the House for years. They're funny . . . a little rambunctious. The Senate seems much more dignified. I have it on all day. (Now), I'm much more involved and write letters constantly. It's real important to me."

—a housewife in Middleton, CO, who worked on the Gary Hart presidential campaign and tapes
C-SPAN to send to school with her 16-year-old daughter

"I think (the Senate is) beautiful. The door's been closed for years and now they've finally opened it."

—an auto worker (M) in Youngstown, OH

"I enjoyed the Tax Reform Bill very much. I watched it from its inception—I watched—what is it 118 hours? I watched the whole thing!"

—a retiree (M) in Glendale, CA

"I'm totally fascinated. I can't believe there's a discussion about taking them (the Senate) off the air. I think as a public citizen we have a right to see our politicians in action."

—a free-lance interior designer (F)
in Clarkston, MI

"I've been dying to watch the Senate—they have more time to deliberate, discuss. . ."

—a retired executive secretary (F)
in Mobile, AL

"...I have written to both my senators urging them to vote for permanent coverage of the Senate proceedings in the future."

—a viewer (M) in Plano, TX

"I feel like I'm in a theater. . . . theater-in-the-round!"

—a retired dress buyer (F) and political
activist in Hartford, CT

"Now that the Senate is on, I find myself procrastinating studying even more so I can watch. . . . The debate seems to be so much more lively. . . ."

—an American Government major (M) at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, MN
—C-SPAN is sometimes used in his classes

"...best of all it (the Senate coverage) is an educational program—a scan of hope for our future political leaders."

—a viewer (F) in Bristol, CT

"We need (C-SPAN's coverage) to get rid of the mystique in government."

—a medical technologist (M)
in Phoenix, AZ

"I do enjoy the Senate. (It's) much smaller and you can recognize faces. I do a lot of VCR taping when I can't be here to see something I want to see."

—a retired civil servant (M)
in Alexandria, VA

"I can't describe the sense of pride I felt in an institution that I'd given up on—let me correct that—two institutions I'd given up on: Television and the U.S. Senate."

—a viewer (M) in Colorado Springs, CO

C-SPAN II

The U.S. Senate on Television

... C-SPAN Viewers React

"I hope the Senate . . . (keeps) the TV coverage, because I'm sure there are a lot of people who think the way I do—they'd like to be able to see and judge for themselves."

—a recent retiree (F) in Dayton, OH

"Coverage of the Senate is great! . . . It's important for us to get both pictures—not just the House."

—a small-business person (F)
in Melbourne Village, FL

"I've watched the House for years. They're funny . . . a little rambunctious. The Senate seems much more dignified. I have it on all day. (Now), I'm much more involved and write letters constantly. It's real important to me."

—a housewife in Middleton, CO, who worked on the Gary Hart presidential campaign and tapes
C-SPAN to send to school with her 16-year-old daughter

"I think (the Senate is) beautiful. The door's been closed for years and now they've finally opened it."

—an auto worker (M) in Youngstown, OH

"I enjoyed the Tax Reform Bill very much. I watched it from its inception—I watched—what is it 118 hours? I watched the whole thing!"

—a retiree (M) in Glendale, CA

"I'm totally fascinated. I can't believe there's a discussion about taking them (the Senate) off the air. I think as a public citizen we have a right to see our politicians in action."

—a free-lance interior designer (F)
in Clarkston, MI

"I've been dying to watch the Senate—they have more time to deliberate, discuss. . . "

—a retired executive secretary (F)
in Mobile, AL

" . . . I have written to both my senators urging them to vote for permanent coverage of the Senate proceedings in the future."

—a viewer (M) in Plano, TX

"I feel like I'm in a theater. . . . theater-in-the-round!"

—a retired dress buyer (F) and political
activist in Hartford, CT

"Now that the Senate is on, I find myself procrastinating studying even more so I can watch. . . . The debate seems to be so much more lively. . . . "
