

10/9/92

Dear C-SPAN (Brian)

I Love you 002594 OCT 14 1992

— Why do you give a platform to Paul Greenberg of the Arkansas Democrat on journalists Roundtable as if he were an objective reporter? He's an editor on a personal vendetta. Your other two guests were objective journalists who can not, by job description, give their opinions. You're mixing apples and oranges.

While I often see conservative and very conservative opinionists on your shows, I very rarely see the real other side. (The Village Voice the Boston Phoenix, Mother Jones) Reed Irvine and the Christian Right have tried and it seems have succeeded in declaring the Washington Post and the NY Times and other main stream, status quo <sup>(in my opinion pro business and reputation)</sup> papers as Liberal. Why do you let AIM defines who is liberal and who is conservative? The Washington Times is an extreme right wing paper with a political agenda even on its so-called news pages — it is not balance to have someone from the Washington Times and someone from the Washington Post. Don't let the strident voices from the Christian Right always define the debate!

C-SPAN
400 N. Capitol St. NW
Washington DC
20001

