Attn: Health Care

Health Care is becoming a big issue and the worst thing that could possibly happen has happened, the Politically Correct leaders are going to fix the problem. I watched your show this morning and I agree with Fred Barnes, the Politically Correct of Washington D.C. are looking in the wrong direction.

Before anything can be done we need to find out what the problems are. Insurance premiums: per-dollar how much is going to overhead expenses, how much to insurance claims and how much is going to other expenses, like investments in capital formation, office bldg. Realestate Investment, Corp. Bonds and so forth. Hospitals: why are customers charged a 500 % mark up on a bowl of salad. Drug companies: what are their problems, and Doctors: why do they always want to be treated like Prima Donnas? Oh yes they do, you should listen to some nurses at one of our local hospitals.

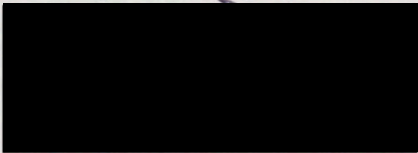

I am a small businessman and I run a service company. We are called the shadow people; we are there, but nobody sees us. We work on doors, desks, electrical components and other things. We are there and we do see and hear a lot. What we see is mostly miss-management, stupid government regulations, fraud and greed. The right hand doesn't know what the left hand is doing.

Before we get bent out of shape and do something we will be sorry for later, why don't we give all the above mention people a chance to explain themselves? Call them into a room and tell them they have a major problem, come up with a solution or the government will. I think they can come up with better ideas than Mrs. Clinton or Congress; forget Bill he is taking a scenic tour on a Bus.

Tort reform, that's easy, call all the lawyers in, line them up against a wall, shoot every other one and tell the survivors they are next (that's a joke people) but not a bad idea.

We appreciate what C-Span is doing for all of us who are not politically correct. Stay away from short ropes and tall trees, but hang in there.

Respectfully yours
