I really was extremely into program and watched as I I have something to say about Stereotypes.

Just as you have worked for 20 years,
I too have worked as an L.N. for 30 years.
I am 65 years of age and still work three days per week. (L.N. is, Licensed Practical Nurse.)

It shocks most people when I tell them my age. God has been extremely generous to me. I look much younger than my age and am really proud of it.

Most people, especially the young, think that 65 means old, fat, grandmotherly, gray, slow
and all those other things that people expect.

Believe me I had a tough time trying to make the black people I work with accept and respect me. The young Charge Nurse (who is white) used to dislike it when others would come to me for answers. It was obvious I was older. It was a mistake and I would steer them to her. Consequently I found myself hiding or walking away so that she wouldn't be angry.

Finally, I decided I would have to be Myself, whether people liked it or not. Otherwise, I would become inverted and unhappy. That was not for me.

I really was extremely interested in your program and watched as long as I could.

I have something to say about Stereotypes.
