Dear Mr. Lamb:

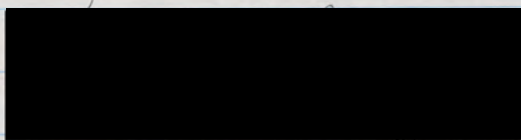

I watched your telecast this morning from New York and I just cracked up at one of the guests you had on, Eric Breindel, editor of the New York Post. How did you keep a straight face sitting across from that guy? Does he have narcolepsy or what? A few times the camera would catch him and quickly move away and his eyes were rolling back in his head like he was going to sleep. And that voice of his — he sounded like he has a really bad sinus infection. Whoa! I hope you don't have him on again for a long time.

I would really like to see more conservative journalists on but I know they are scarcer than hen's teeth.

I really enjoy C-Span and watch it every morning. I think you're the best of the lot as far as the hosts go.

Sincerely,
