

CHILDREN of MOTHER EARTH®

The wolf and the bear are two of the most threatened species in the world. They are symbols of our chance to learn how to treat our planet with respect and caring. If we are able to allow the wolf and the bear their places, we will have learned much about walking in balance and harmony on Earth.

"Every part of this Earth is sacred to my people.
Every shining pine needle, every sandy shore,
every mist in the dark woods,
every meadow, every humming insect.
All are holy in the memory and experience
of my people."

— Chief Seattle, Dwamish

21
This philosophy touches
on my own.

By the way, we saw a black bear with her cub very close to us. She was so busy eating berries & showing her cub where to eat — she never looked up at us! We were about 20ft. from her!

Aren't these two noble
creatures? I like to think I am related!!!

I saved this card for you!
I had a grand trip in the Rockies! I remember the glorious glaciers & I walked on the ice field! — 7-8 ft. of ice. If you have not been there I recommend it to you.

1

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO 80918-6944

Brian Lamb, 9-23-94

Glad you are back in town!
You & Susan did a job at the Lincoln/Douglas debate. Great!
What a wonderful experience
for us. I am very gratified to see so many young people involved
in our very, very recent past,
really.

When I taught young children
I often picked the oldest person
in any one of a student's family — usually got back to late 19th century — grand parents or great grand parents — and then
related our history in 100's —
a teacher can relate history
to children in that way.

My parents were born in 1870's —
which was just at the end of the Civil War, really. My grandfather left his school teacher position to join the Union Army (from Indiana!).

3' Your trip this morning was very refreshing. Glad to see some new people.

I am literally ill to see U.S. soldiers again in a foreign country. I hope they can get out soon without bloodshed on all sides.

I think you know everything - I am sure you have heard of the Library of Congress new publication - Am looking forward to reading it in my own home. I think it will interest me. Will make later comments!!

I like John Lund and Barbara Cashman and Jack Wersberg. Looking forward to Shields & Phillips! Thank you & all your staff for

CHILDREN OF MOTHER EARTH®

Carol Snow • Seneca Heritage

providing an interesting life for me. Sincerely,

[Redacted]
Sorry! I wrote too much!

Recycled
Paper

Living for
Seven Generations
Coming

P.O. Box 889 • New Castle, CO 81647 USA

Litho in USA

E-214

