LAW OF PRINCIPAL . . . UNAUTHORIZED ACTS BY AN AGENT ARE NOT BINDING ON THE PRINCIPAL

"Law of Principal" is central to resolving the constitutional crisis.

The original thirteen Nations, recognized as such by the Treaty of Peace which concluded the Revolutionary War, created the Federal government.

Following the War for Independence, the thirteen nation-states organized themselves as the United States under a mutual compact, the Constitution of the United States.

Every succeeding State entered the Union of States, "... upon an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatsoever," (Chapter XXXVI, 13 United Statutes at Large, 1864).

The constitutional contract established, in the first three Articles, three branches of government: Legislative, Executive and Judicial. The People, through their State deputies, delegated to these three agencies certain limited powers, retaining unto themselves all powers not so delegated.

Each sovereign State, as a Principal under the constitutional compact, is supreme over its Federal agencies. The State is empowered to correct acts by its Federal agents which IT deems violate delegated powers enumerated in the Articles of the Constitution.

Each sovereign State has the authority and the responsibility to enforce provisions of the Constitution within its borders, and to provide criminal sanctions for violators.

The People, from whom flow all political powers, are responsible for instructing their State senators and representatives to challenge unconstitutional acts by Federal agents, as they are required to do by oath of office.

Each citizen is charged with the mission of defending and preserving freedoms of person and property guaranteed to the People by the Constitution of the United States.

POSSESSING A GUN

It's more than a right

On the 7th of August, 1993, at 0331 hrs. in the morning, I learned firsthand why it is important that every American have the right to own firearms for the defense of his life his property and his family. My wife awakened me, having heard the loud report of a heavy object being slammed against our carport door. I went to investigate, and saw nor heard nothing for 2 to 3 minutes. Then, there at the back door, was the same unmistakable crash, as someone struck the back door.

I grabbed my handgun as my wife called the police emergency number, and I took a position in the hallway were I could see both doors. While my fellow officers were on the way, the intruders broke the window on the door, and I watched as one of them reached inside, unlocked the deadbolt, and opened the door. I had the sights on the chest of the 16 year-old gang member, as the intruder stepped into my house and walked toward the carport door to let the rest of the group in. I announced loudly that I had a gun and would shoot if the suspect didn't get down on the floor. I took the first one into custody. As I waited for the next intruder to enter, the police arrived and arrested a 26 year-old gang member as he fled through a neighbor's yard. He had taken my threat seriously. The others escaped.

I didn't have to kill anyone that night, but I would have, to protect my family. I'm certain that the fact I had a gun was the reason nobody got hurt. The mere threat of a homeowner with the intent and the means of defending his home was enough to convince them to leave.

Several facts were forcefully impressed on me and my family that night. First, the police can't always get there in time to prevent disaster. Though they arrived within three minutes, it was too late to prevent the forceful entry of my home.

Second, had I not kept a gun for protection, my family might have been injured or killed.

Third, had I chosen a different career, the same tragic result might have obtained. I am a police officer, and as such, I am assured that I can exercise my right to keep and bear arms. Depending upon where a person lives, other citizens not in law enforcement, are increasingly thwarted by unsound laws and political philosophies in their attempts to own firearms for defense or other lawful purposes.

In New South Whales, it's unlawful to keep a gun for self-protection. And that's exactly what is in store for America unless we stand up and stop the forces of personal disarmament.

Second Amendment...It's more than a right.
