Brian, I am one of your 85-ys-old fans.
Love the way you do your homework "before interviewing an author. Someone like Lynn Sherr makes me wish you were my grandson!
Occasionally, a "toughie" makes me proud of you for having compassion and patience.

You make me want to know what you'll turn to when the C-Spon period is over. I was lucky to have something to turn to is retirement that kept me studying and enjoying people, and for 10 years kept me traveling "Queen of the Road" in a motorhome.

The impulse to write came when I ran across something in an Old Reckless Diary I was throwing away. I thought, "Oh, how Brian Lomb would enjoy that!"

Le Anne Alexander does seem to me almost too "good" for today's politics, And besides that, he does look the kind of Charisma that Reagan and John Kennedy ~~shared~~ were endowed with.

Colin Powell seems to have it for money. I have a personal problem with him in that he looks well with and admired, a man I grew to resent. Not even Margaret Thatcher's getting Queen Elizabeth to knight him made him less than an S.O.B., to me.
 I was glad for Powell that, he, too, could have that privilege, to keep up with his former S.O.B. ~~superior~~ ^{Gaspar}! But I'll have to watch Powell closely to make sure he is not another ^{Gaspar} Weinberger! I've been mis-judged by whom I worked with, so I try to watch it, to be fair.

Clinton are Angier cancel each other out, if you're feeling critical!

Good luck! You are quite a person.

Sincerely,
