Dec. 26

I want to congratulate C-span and CNN on their unbiased and nonpolitical programs about President Clinton. One thing is quite evident, Ed Turner does not espouse the views once championed by Jane Fonda.

There was no right wing slant to these programs. Let's see! An attorney, Jackson a sworn enemy of Clinton gets a couple of Arkansas Troopers to allege that President Clinton had several marital affairs. Where to take this story? To a pinko left wing tabloid? Sorry none available, so to a far right tabloid, named Spectator, dealing mostly in nonpolitical news. Then this owner of Spectator, another nonpolitical person, named Brock, wants to squelch the story but will discuss it with another unbiased individual, named Ed Turner. Unbeknown, to Jackson, Brock and Turner there has been another pair of sleuth-hounds from the Los Angeles Times, sniffing on a trail several years old, for many months. They have their story now. But where to air it nationally.

So C-span, ever looking for the truth, has arranged for a discussion about these charges by bringing together Ed Turner, Doug Frantz, the Sam Spade of the L.A. Times, and a Ms. Hume. How this woman was chosen, I don't know but several times she seemed embarrassed by the whole shenanigans.

Oh, Ed and Doug leveled their siege gun allegations against President Clinton but behold! There were no eyewitnesses. Damn the witnesses, full allegations a-hudd. Ms. Hume, to her credit, tried to bring some reasoning to this debacle, was unable to because of the right wing tactic of constant interruption to silence any rebuttal. (Ever watch Buchanan and Sununu on Crossfire?) Same tactics.

CNN on Sunday night repeated the same cast except adding another Elery Queen from the Los Angeles Times to back up Sam Spade, Doug Frantz. The same tactics were used against the sole rebuttal to the charges. And again no witnesses.

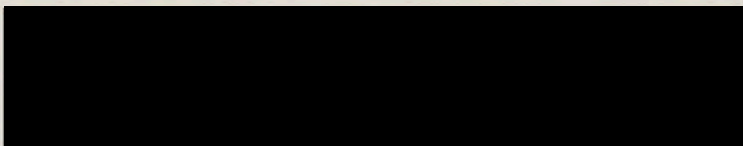

I know there was no political influence here because of an interview taken place on a well known radio program. Mr Robert Dornan, a man who froths at the mouth at the name Clinton, interviewed Mr. Brock, on (hold onto your hats) that unbiased, honest reporting, author of that intellectual novel, 'The way things ought to be', about returning to conditions under big business in the twenties and before, Rush Limbaugh. Just the sheer weight of this man, (no pun intended) justice will prevail. He said so many times, He has all the family values on his side.

To seal the evening, a woman call-in from Arkansas, most calls on CNN, CSPAN and other call-in shows ²come from the south) said she was appalled at the conduct of President Clinton. She sounded like a woman scorned. To her, I would say, how is it that the people of Arkansas elected President Clinton six or seven times? And Mr Jackson and friendly troopers were around then.

Could it be that economic conditions are improving, that several pieces of legislation have passed and President Clintons ratings are starting to climb in spite of the right wing predictions of gloom and doom. These encouraging conditions even took the Christmas spirit from Senator Dole.

There is a story around here about those troopers. It was bad enough protecting Clinton, but had to ~~be~~ roundup stray female cats and smuggle them to the sex fiend, Socks. Just a little right wing humor and rumor.
