Mr. Lamb

I believe in you President and I'll keep anyway Can.

I think it's unfair to our new President for you to sit there and hold up newspapers and magazines & criticisms made by the media. You sure look as if you enjoy this kind of scrutiny. Media has ruined a lot of people, for example what NBC did to G.M.
why don't the media wait for the real facts instead of getting bits & pieces and then use their own ideas and write something that is completely out of context.
I'm also upset that you call our new President & first Lady Arkansas hillbillies. I'm a WV hillbilly and proud of it. Just because you're from a small state doesn't mean you aren't capable of running the Government. You are giving the American people a very negative look for the next (4) years. Leave him alone. Why don't you have someone on your panel to explain to the American people why the charges had to be made since the campaign. I think the problem is the Republicans and the media are upset they didn't win the election, I think that's your problem too.

The media started harrassing Pres. Clinton the first day in office, or must I say the day he entered the race. That man worked hard to get where he is. I was raised to respect my President regardless of whether you're a Republican or Democrat. I'm enclosing an article that appeared in the Florida paper, which was not mentioned on your show, regarding Mrs. Carter's years in the White House. I feel the same ^{way} she does. All the criticism that's on TV has given me second thoughts of all news and the media.

There isn't a news station worth watching all you hear is criticisms on Clinton, which is very sad and disgusting.

This morning Colin Powell was on the "Today" show. He is such a wonderful person. He spoke very highly of Clinton. He knows what a mess the Clinton administration got into and what the Bush administration left for them and what a bad shape the country is in. Everything he said was very positive. I admire him for going on TV and straighten the article someone put in a local newspaper, which was false. This is why so many Americans don't trust the media or journalist. Actually they act (over),

like they

I know it all and try to tell the President what to do, so disgusting.

So, why are you blaming Clinton for this country being in such a mess. This is Bush's mess that was left for the next Pres. to clean up, which is Clinton.

So, my advice is lay off give the man a chance. He is doing a good job. If you don't like him, keep your criticism to yourself.

By the way I have a broken finger its difficult for me to write - please excuse my writing.

Sincerely

/encl.

Rosalynn Carter advises Hillary: Do what you want

The nation's last Democratic first lady, Rosalynn Carter, has some advice for the current one, Hillary Rodham Clinton: Do what you want.

CARTER

"I told her that in politics you are going to be criticized, so do what you want to do and be involved," Carter said while visiting Birmingham, Ala.

Carter, who was criticized when she sat in on Cabinet meetings with her husband, applauded Hillary's role as head of her husband's health care task force.

"I don't know why this country would think a first lady is supposed to just sit there and look at her husband," Carter said.
