

[REDACTED]
W. Franklin, N.H. 03235
March 22, 1993

Mr. Brian Lamb
C-SPAN
400 Capitol St. NW
Washington, DC 20001

002594 22693

Dear Mr. Lamb:

Since I have been unable to connect by phone to your call-in programs; and, in addition, I really can't afford to pay for the long distant call, I am writing.

These questions and/or observations are burning at my inner sensibilities; and would like comments or criticism made to my thoughts and suggestions.

1. In watching the proceedings or the House of Representatives, I find that the number of empty chairs, the phoney posturing made by the various representatives to a member of the opposition, the time wasted watching the electronic voting procedure (all I see is a bunch of polititians "back-slapping and heifer dusting") and the waste of time, money, and paper to have these inconsequential one minute speeches entered into the record is ridiculous. Some sort of order and agenda would accomplish more and save more money. Can any thing bring around these changes?

2. No matter who is President or in Congress, I feel that there will be no adequate recovery from a recession when so many other countries are in the same situation. Since international trade is indispensable to all, we all need a good recovery in order to erase recessions.

Would an international consortium endeavoring to help each nation, by helping each other, to overcome their recessionry problems be a viable plan? I feel we all need each other in order to be successful.

3. Last November, I did not feel there was anyone who was truly qualified to fill the qualifications for being a good president. The Republicans and Democrats have had a long term of lying, grabbing and favoritism; thereby destroying my respect and faith that they were really doing what they should. I don't fully recognize what Ross Perot could do for us if elected; but I am most willing to act as a watch dog, as he advocates, in order to give the government back to the people.

I hope this helps you affirm or re-affirm your ideas about how some of us feel. Thank you for you attention and efforts in our behalf.

Sincerely yours,
[REDACTED]

W Franklin, NH 03235

Mr. Brian Lamb
C-SPAN
400 Capitol St. N.W.
Washington, DC 20001