C-Span
Washington DC

Why do I watch C-Span? Of all the TV experiences that attempt to cover national and international events, particularly as they affect Americans, C-Span has, for me, offered a very satisfying approach. The format, the moderator, and the guest speakers have a facility for generating questions and comments from viewers that give one a good general concept of how viewing Americans think and feel about their fellow citizens, their government, and the economy. Other similar presentations have not found a formula as effective in projecting real citizen involvement with a national perspective.

Respectrully,
