Gentlemen:

Your 6:00 P.M. EDT broadcast of "The Moscow Evening News" is fairly interesting. This program would be more useful to students of the Russian language if it was possible to hear it in Russian, and have the English translation in captions.

Alternatively, please consider broadcasting in stereo: MTS (Multi-channel TV Sound) mode. The SAP (Second Audio Program) mode could be used to carry the Russian language, while English could be heard on the main stereo mode.

In fact, I would prefer to hear any foreign language and to have the English translation in captions, than to listen to the jumble of the English interpreter while hearing the foreign language in the background.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely yours,
