War with Iraq fast becoming best U.S. option

By David Segal

Special to The Denver Post

Military action is rapidly emerging as the best, and possibly the only, solution to the problems created by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

To begin with, Iraqi actions continue to provide ample grounds for war. Secondly, the United Nations trade embargo fails to address the threat of future Iraqi aggression and isn't working fast enough or well enough.

Lastly, the military forces needed to win a war with Iraq are now in place and will reach full strength by mid-October.
