Sirs -

Journalists Round Table has long been one of my favorite programs. They are consistently of high quality but at times not as interesting as others.

However, I consider the panel of this Friday morning one of the least interesting and less well-informed ... or so they seemed. The three of them seemed to be of one mind and usually you have one on the panel that stimulates the direction. Your program encourages exchange of positions and/ or ideas but this particular panel were just plain dull.

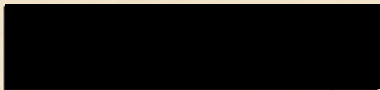

Will hope next week it will again be informative and provocative as we have come to expect of it.
