

I watch C-Span because it gives you a closer view of Washington than is possible from newspapers and other TV shows and thus. I feel I know more about the Government.

C.Span is bringing you live pictures of activities which are not possible to get elsewhere and as a result one can see the Government at work and obtain a better understanding of the gov. and its role.

C-Span provides those lapses in the Civics books which enable you to more fully understand the Committee system and the relationship of some Government officials to each other.

If Civics books and lessons had the vitality of C-Span we would not have the lethargy which exists through the country when it comes to elections. C-Span does much to inspire people to go out and vote for whomever the voter thinks is best..

C-Span cameras bring you up close to the legislator and one can see quite clearly that they all pull their pants on one leg at a time and that going from Wewoka, Okla, doesn't make them any brighter.

C-Span gives you a better understanding of the people involved in Gov. and that they are really ordinary people just like back home and they are not going to do anything differently in Washington than they do at home..Although of late years this has not proved out.

And on the other side when C Span is covering other parts of Washington such as the Press Club and other meetings it gives us a view of the other people in Washington...the press...etc,,so that we can get some understanding of them also and they pull their pants on the same way.

C Span is a treasure..a national treasure which should be supported in every possible way to insure that the wide general public gets to view Washington close up.
