

Encore!

Dear Brian.

I love books. Especially good ones — not that I read them all. I have Book Notes — not that I catch them all. Sorry about that. You had one such episode on the Alsops — author Bob Merry. He was just a teenager when he worked one summer (landscaping for my father in Gig Harbor, Washington State.) Thoroughly enjoyed the interview. Also loved the one with Robert Bork — Slouching towards Gomorrah.

(loved the Gorbachev interview.
& the one on Nixon by Bronica? —)

Robert^H Bork has been one of my favorites & I have his ^{"The Tempting of America"}.

But! I believe my favorite of all was Solomon Rushdie's "The Moor's Last Sigh". What a mind! What a wit! What a treat too. There are probably others, I'm sure. Maybe, I'll become refreshed when I see them among the chosen choices for re-run?

* (Anything on Churchill — of course!)
You are very refreshing yourself. What a joy it is to have a "natural" interviewer as well as a fairminded point of view. You are much appreciated by this vicar, at least. What was your favorite for 1996?
Sincerely,

O.B.K. Post
