C-Span -
Washington D.C.

As a regular viewer of C-Span I must express my dismay when I heard your 2 1/2 hr interview with Ross Perot. I couldn't believe you would in all fairness give him that much free time to campaign and criticize the President. He has no valid answers for any questions that are asked of him. His ego is so evident to most viewers that he appears ridiculous. The people who called in to question him or express their opinion were obviously screened. Due to the fact that there were no negative comments. Could it be possible that he hand picked the callers or made it a condition of his interview to have no negative callers? It was almost unbelievable.

The worst thing about this program was that it was repeated many times during the next few days.

I am sorry. I have watched C-Span I - for many years and have enjoyed it and found it to be free of bias until now. The reporters on the 8 A.M. call in show the next morning found it to be their mission to also criticize President Clinton.

What is it that makes reporters or commentators experts in government? Their most important goal in life is ratings and polls.

Sincerely —
