

June 27, 1999

Dear Mr. Lamb,

This is probably the first few letter I've ever written. (I wrote about a note to Laurence Olivier when I was 12.) But I feel remiss in not having written to you sooner. My husband and I have been listening attentively, and with great enjoyment, and for several years, to your Booknotes program.

We not only have an interesting haul of videos, rare on TV, but have learned a great deal, and have also been led to read many books that might otherwise have passed us by.

So - thank you very much, and long may you flourish. You're give us hours of intelligent, and offer fascinating programs, and we appreciate and admire you.

Sincerely yours,

[REDACTED]
W. Orange, N.J.
07052