

Dear Mr. Lamb:

Praise
(C-SPAN)

Oct 16, 1994

I would like to take this time, to say thanks for C-SPAN. Of particularly the book notes program, which has encouraged me to practice and improve writing skills, in hopes of becoming an author. It also allows a look at your interviewing style, which I think is terrific, it sometimes seems as if you could get information out of a plain omelette; Brian keep up the good work.

I do have a suggestion for a program I wish to put forth. A viewer call in show called Solutions; for lack of a better word. A prepared caller would give a brief synopsis of a current: local, National, or international, problem. They would then go on to give a brief solution, of that problem. During the call, the callers name and address would appear on the screen.

And in addition, the host could announce the same. the idea being viewers or interested persons, could then get in touch with the caller, to get more specific information, or to make suggestions. If you did not want to put the callers Name and address on screen or announce it, you might assign a caller a id. screen number, that viewers could access by touch tone phone to get that callers, Name address, phone number ect... a short Preamble, to Remind Callers to be prepared would be an idea. I believe the audience would come up with some solid ideas, and if they have a interesting or Novel idea or solution, to be prepared for a lot of Mail! what do you think?

Yours truly:
