ROLL  CALL

Courtesy of C-SPAN

Let's Go to the Phones

On Oct. 7, C-SPAN celebrated the 25th anniversary of television's first-ever regularly scheduled national call-in program. The network marked the occasion by taking phone calls for 25 consecutive hours at the National Press Club, just like in 1980.

It was from the NPC where C-SPAN founder Brian Lamb took a phone call from Yankton, S.D., on Oct. 7, 1980, kicking off a program style that has led to more than 46,000 call-in segments and a half-million phone calls.
