Dear Sirs:

I watch C Span quite often and have come to the conclusion that it is not by-partisan, as such a show should be, but definitely conservative.

How could you have such an avowed anti-clinton "newsman" such as Michael Barone on your show November 24, 1993 without having someone to offset his vicious rhetoric. I don't have a problem with a politician on your show alone because you know what their positions are expect what you hear.

Now after broadcasting and rebroadcasting David Broch's tales from the American Spectator, a leading journal of right-wing thought, you are again going to repeat it during the Christmas weekend even though the vast majority of people object to it, and the Clintons have denied the allegations.

C Span better change its standards or risk losing its audience and funding.

Respectfully yours
