

Brian Lamb
PO Box 17726
Washington, D.C. 20041

[REDACTED]
West Plains, Mo 65775
16 April 1994
[REDACTED]

Dear sir,

First let me admonish you that in my opinion the media does a very poor job in exposing the unconstitutional procedures of congress and the president of the United States of America, let alone the corruption. Are you afraid of the threat of the fairness doctrine proposed by congress awhile back; which would be unconstitutional anyway. Correct me if I'm wrong. It appears to me that once congress has passed legislation to spend money on a project, like the particle accelerator in Texas, that was abandoned, that the president can spend the money saved on anything he wishes. Is this true and without the re-approval of congress? My point is the particular accelerator was abandoned because it was too expensive and the government didn't have the money-5 to 11 billion. However the government found the money 60 billion to spend on studying the non-existent problem of the ozone. Pseudo scientist have been duping the federal government out of billions of dollars for years. When is the government going to wake up? Inclosed is an article; I forgot the newspaper, stating the same thing. The Clinton Administration is using mirrors and smoke just like they accused the republicans, plus lies.

Read Dixie Lee Ray's book-Trashing the Planet-it tells the falsity of such garbages and gives references to back it up. The ozone layer is formed by the sun; when sun spots are prevalent we have more ozone. I agree we should not pollute, but, the pollution does not reach the ozone layer, it is washed out of the atmosphere by rain before it ever gets that high. Over 60% of the scientist in the world say this.

How about the federal spending billions of dollars on studying cow flatulence? How stupid can we get? How about human flatulence, there are more of us, than there are cows, big deal. No wonder they can't balance the federal budget.

Like always we don't get to vote for the better man for president, we are always voting for the lesser of two evils. Years ago I joined the Democrat Party. The question was asked, "why we didn't have better quality candidates running for office" and the answer was only flakes run for office because it's a thankless unwanted job". I have to agree 100%, look at the fiasco of White Water just because Bob Dole wants to run for president the next time. It should have been investigated before Clinton was elected President.

I think the politicians get a free lunch as far as the media reporting their incompetencies to say the least. How can a country survive without a candid press?

Sincerely yours
[REDACTED]

Congratulations on a fine Program!

Don't trash the economy

OPPOSING VIEW The supposed threat to the climate is not proven; the threat to jobs is very real.

A survey of leading scientists by Gallup, USA TODAY's pollster, shows that the vast majority of those studying planetary climatology do not believe that human activity is causing any sort of global warming problem. NASA's latest satellite data fortifies that consensus, proving there has been no increase in global temperature over the past 15 years.

Nevertheless, the current administration continues to deny scientific reality, sounding the apocalyptic trumpet. Worse, it plans to take $60 billion away from productive activities to solve a non-existent problem.

Armed with nothing more than the undocumented claims of the most radical environmentalist fanatics, our government is proposing the subjugation of the entire economy to green bureaucrats. It is going beyond even the extremist Rio de Janeiro treaty of last year.

By Patrick Cox of Menlo Park, Calif., an associate policy analyst for the Competitive Enterprise Institute.

If we succumb to the administration's plans to squander $60 billion on a non-existent problem, we will suffer massive unemployment and prolonged economic stagnation. We will be forced into tiny, unsafe cars, and the cost of all consumer goods will soar, accomplishing nothing.

Listen, folks, we know what's going on: President Clinton brought Al Gore onto his ticket in large part to win environmentalist special-interest group support. This is payback time, and we are going to pick up the bill.

I used to call myself an environmentalist, and I still care passionately about the Earth. But I have seen honest efforts taken over by the green equivalent of avaricious TV preachers and their cultish hordes. Like many others, including most voters and scientists, I now oppose their anti-science, anti-industrial, anti-human extremism. Our government should as well.