Gentlemen:

Your series on "American Presidents" is terrific! I'm very sorry that most of your black callers always find the need to just address the slavery issue during the earlier administrations. Slavery was there from Washington to Lincoln. It was a way of life then, it was apparent, and students of history know this, why do these nigger callers have to belabor it?

I watch this series to get an inner feeling for these earlier and lesser known presidents up to Lincoln. I watch this series to find out personal history of these gentlemen and not just their stand on, or feelings about slavery, because I don't really care!

During your segment on Franklin Pierce, a nigger woman called in and even suggested that black callers were somehow screened, if they alluded to the slavery question. Typical, today's nigger is always looking for a bone of contention. Instead of debating the merits of slavery, long past, why don't they deal with their own present black community and clean up their drug using, drug pushing offspring? Why don't they call on present heads of tribes in Africa and complain that it was ancient nigger chiefs who sold slaves to slaves for gold?

I, for one, am interested in the lines of these earlier presidents and I dread your nigger caller, because most wish to turn the segment into a "slavery forum". Author Barry Paris claimed Andy Jackson was a racist. So what, under our Constitution and in this country, one has a right to believe or not to believe? To me racism is a personal right and belief and should not and cannot be legislated away. To me this right is as sacred as the right to believe or not believe in God!

Let's move ahead with this great "American Presidents" series and allow today's nigger to take his or her case to a show like a Joe Jackson show.
This nigger is free today, free to use and push drugs, free to rob and kill and free to fill the welfare rolls, prisons and death row in prisons. Today's nigger has all of freedom, which they handle poorly, so allow me to hear what these presidents were like personally and like the slavery but and can it! Stop using past slavery as an excuse not to work and get free handouts!

Very Truly
