

I watch C SPAN because my intellect and conscience demand it and my family deserves the example.

Television provides insight and personality to world events not available in newspapers. As the communication revolution shrinks the world, it behooves each of us to accept the responsibility of keeping informed so that we are prepared to contribute in whatever way we can to man's advancement. It has been my experience that C SPAN provides a professional coverage of events in a variety and depth available nowhere else.

In the short time that cable and C SPAN have been available, the quality of our family discussions has improved tremendously. I happen to be at a reflective stage of my life and I appreciate the effects of family on my attitudes and values. When my grandson enters the room and asks, "What are you watching Grandpa?", I somehow get the feeling that there is hope for the future and that I may be making a small contribution when I answer, "C SPAN" and not "Three's Company".
