Today you asked for info on connection of Commerce Sec'y Ron Brown with government of N. Vietnam which has so cruelly mistreated our POWs. Here it is!

I heard you ask a caller if Spotlight was still connected with Liberty Lobby. Thanks God it is! How else would I know whats really going on in the cesspool known as Washington, D.C.?

Many thanks for C-Span. It has cured me of NBC, ABC + CBS.

Plans for Investment Billions

The rush by U.S. corporations to cash in on business opportunities in Vietnam is already beginning, despite the fact that the U.S. trade embargo with that communist nation is still in force.

EXCLUSIVE TO THE SPOTLIGHT
By Mike Blair

A deal was recently struck by a Singapore partner of a giant Boston-based real estate conglomerate to build a nearly $1 billion port in Vietnam. It's an example of the business opportunities giant U.S. corporations expect to be generated by lifting the U.S. trade embargo from Vietnam and making International Monetary Fund loans available to Hanoi.

Colliers International, one of the world's largest real estate concerns with 129 offices in North and Central America, Europe and the so-called Pacific Rim nations, generates more than $300 million in revenues annually. It has assisted in brokering a $905 million deal to develop a deep-sea port at Vung Tau, about 80 miles southeast of Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon before the communist take-

FREE TRADE IS DYING

"Free trade makes no sense between societies with different systems of living and different concepts of social protection." We couldn't have said this better ourselves, but it wasn't us talking. This statement was made by Jacques Calvet, head of the French Peugeot auto company.

Protectionism, once condemned as "nativist" and to blame for everything from the Great Depression to major wars, is rapidly gaining ground as a respectable alternative to free trade, which in turn is increasingly under attack by leading thinkers and politicians.

According to a recent article by Bernard D. Kaplan of the Hearst News Service: "Beset by surging unemployment and other economic solutions that defy quick solutions, politicians and economists in all three of the major industrial areas represented at the [G-7 economic] summit [in Tokyo] have begun to see the use of the kind of unabashed protectionist language not heard since the 1930s."

Not only is protectionism "gaining ground in practice but [it is] also acquiring intellectual respectability." The author then cites a number of leading European economists who have come to the same conclusion recently that

Secret Viet Deal Cloaked

Moves toward normalization of relations with Vietnam and the lifting of the U.S. trade embargo are proceeding on schedule, while an alleged scandal centering on Commerce Secretary Ron Brown's involvement in a deal with the Vietnamese remains under wraps.

EXCLUSIVE TO THE SPOTLIGHT
By Mike Blair

Further details of an alleged deal made by Commerce Secretary Ron Brown with the communist leaders of Vietnam to get the 1975 U.S. trade embargo suspended in return for millions of dollars in payoffs by the Hanoi government continue to surface.

And meanwhile, Brown's boss, President Bill Clinton, seems to be making certain the alleged arrangement with Vietnam proceeds on schedule.

On July 2, Clinton announced the U.S. government would suspend its efforts to halt a deal made by France and Japan to satisfy $140 million in long-overdue debts to the International Monetary Fund (IMF), which will pave the way for lending more millions to the hard-line Marxist state by the IMF and the World Bank, largely financed by U.S. taxpayers.

In SPOTLIGHT exclusives appearing in the July 5 and July 13 issues, details of the alleged deal forged by Brown with Vietnamese leaders, including Communist Party chief Du Muoi and Prime Minister Vo Van Kiet, were revealed by Vietnamese-American businessman Ly Tranh Binh.

Binh had been an insider in the dealings between Brown and the Vietnamese leaders as the vice chairman of the Vietnam Development Corporation.

The Vietnam Development Corporation was set up late last year by its

THE SPOTLIGHT — THE PAPER YOU CAN TRUST

YOUR WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FROM WASHINGTON SINCE 1975

OUR CREED

The point of view of The SPOTLIGHT is best described as populist and nationalist.

You can trust The SPOTLIGHT to give you "the other side of the news"—to report on events which are vital to your welfare but which would otherwise be hushed up or distorted by the controlled press. So don't expect us to be "objective" or "unbiased." We are biased toward the best interests of the majority of the consumers, taxpayers and voters: the hardworking, misled, exploited and brainwashed American producer—whether blue-collar or white-collar—who pays the bills for the super rich and the very poor.

We make no attempt to give you "both sides ." We'll leave the Establishment side to your daily newspaper, TV and radio. Make up your own mind who is being honest with you: the Establishment media or The SPOTLIGHT.

OUR GUARANTEE

The SPOTLIGHT will always correct any meaningful error of fact.

Debt-Free Money

News You May Have Missed

(A digest of significant news items that failed to appear in most of the nation's press.)

GLAD THEY NOTICED. Two weeks ago, The SPOTLIGHT told you that we could save a lot of money by replacing the dollar bill with a dollar coin. The major reason is that we would not have to borrow the coins, at interest, from the Federal Reserve; they would be issued directly by the treasury. Now Business Week magazine (June 28, 1993) admits we could save $400 million a year with a coin. But BW doesn't say anything about bypassing the Fed. It gives the other reason; that a coin doesn't require the "processing" of paper money and lasts longer. But not only would the $400 million printing costs be saved, but also $328 million in interest.

WONDER WHY. Economist Edward Hyman of International Strategy & Investment Group Inc. says "inexorable competitive pressure from developing economies" is causing "wage restraint" throughout the industrialized world. Average wage gains in the United States are 2.8 percent; in Italy, 2.8; 2.5 in Canada; 2 in Australia and less than 1 percent in Japan. There's just no way for an advanced country to compete with the $1-a-day wage levels common throughout the Third World, without drastically reducing living standards.

LIARS CAN FIGURE. The Labor Department claims there were some 1.52 million net jobs generated over the past year. But economist Lacy Hunt says "the devil is in the details." He notes that 85 percent of the upward revision reflects a change in the Labor Department's so-called "bias adjustment" for jobs created by business startups that are too new to be picked up by the survey. That means that much of the payroll gains over the past year are based on "a fudge factor that is an educated guess at best."

POLITICALLY INCORRECT. Christopher Farrell, writing in the usually very politically correct Business Week magazine (July 5, 1993), said: "The North American Free Trade Agreement, if passed into law, could also hike immigration into the U.S. from Mexico. If Mexican incomes rise, then more Mexicans will be able to afford to leave the country."

PM PICK-ME-UP. British Prime Minister John Major, whose popularity is at a record low, has turned to a "giggle clinic" to cheer himself up, according to the London Daily Mirror. Psychotherapist Robert Holden told the paper that Major's secretary had asked for details of his clinic, which teaches people how to combat stress by having a good laugh. The first prescription for the PM: "transcendental chuckling," which involves sitting in front of a mirror and laughing for two minutes for no reason whatsoever.

BEAT SWORDS INTO NEW SWORDS. Westinghouse Corp. wants to boost its sagging defense division by selling war products to U.S. law enforcement groups. As part of a demonstration, it sent a sophisticated surveillance aircraft to spy on the Branch Davidians in Waco. "If you're in electronics, you have multiple options," said Richard Linder of Westinghouse's defense division.

MAKING A COMEBACK. Count Nikolai Tolstoy, who had record damages of 1.5 million pounds awarded against him in the British High Court for libeling Lord Aldington (AKA Toby Low), cleared his first hurdle in his claim that the case infringed his human rights. The European Commission of Human Rights in Strasbourg, France, declared admissible his claim that the size of the jury award infringed his rights to freedom of expression under the European Human Rights Convention. In a pamphlet, Tolstoy alleged that Aldington, at the end of World War II, was responsible for turning over anti-communists being held in refugee camps in Austria to the forces of Josip Broz Tito, who had them executed. (See The SPOTLIGHT, Jan. 15, 1990 and others.)

WHAT PRICE DEMOCRACY? At least 10,000 people have died in Black townships in South Africa since the "democratic transition" began 3½ years ago. The country is currently enduring another bloody round of violence between rival Black political groups; in the last week, 70 people have been hacked, shot or burned to death in Thokoza and Katlehong townships. The Establishment media ignores the increasing violence the closer the country gets to multi-racial "democracy."

UNSAFE SAFETY. A study on the use of airbags in auto crashes reveals that occupants near the wheel when the bag deploys risk being struck by a force propelled as fast as 211 mph. The incidents demonstrate that drivers need to sit as far from the steering wheel as possible, said Philip Haseltine, president of the American Coalition for Traffic Safety. The New England Journal of Medicine reports an air bag struck a 27-year-old woman in the chest, creating a pressure wave that tore a hole in her heart. The government says air bags are, nevertheless, "safe and reliable."

Personal . . . From the Editor

American foreign policy, which previously had been dedicated to countering the Soviet threat, has taken a turn for the worse. Although anti-communism was the inspiration for countless interventions overseas, in places as far-flung as Vietnam and Nicaragua, at least there was at the time a rationalization that these meddling intrusions into the affairs of others served some American interest. Now, however, our leaders are struggling to come up with an excuse to justify continued intervention, and the best they can do is to claim they are "halting aggression," in the case of Iraq, or serving "humanitarian" goals, in the case of Somalia. In other words, no one knows what American foreign policy is, except that American military might, backed by the taxpayers, will now be used to solve the world's problems.

Ironically, this new rationale for intervention is occurring at a time of unprecedented problems at home, ranging from a struggling economy, rotting inner cities, collapsing infrastructure, and a plague of violent crime. But if there's one thing that should be obvious by now, it's what Liberty Lobby and The SPOTLIGHT have been saying since their inception: Any meddling in the problems of others always makes the problem worse—no exceptions. And the deeper we get involved in the problems of others, the worse they become, and the more inextricably we become ensnared in dangerous, often deadly, situations.

Look at the case of Somalia. We went in doing "God's work" to save the starving masses. Now we've declared virtual war against the people there; in order to save them we've now got to kill many of them. Look at Iraq; it's still defying UN commands. Look at the Middle East. The United States has just arrested several Moslems in this country in an alleged plot to blow up the Lincoln Tunnel and UN headquarters. Why? Because of our support for the cruel and tyrannical regime in power in Egypt. Why do we support Egypt? Because we paid them tens of billions of dollars to make peace with Israel. The sheik alleged to be the mastermind behind the plot—or at least the prime instigator—is in this country "illegally," it is claimed, although he came and went throughout the 1980s at will. (See our story on page 6 for more, and read the commentary by Joseph Sobran on page 10.)

You'd think some of the so-called responsible media, burdened as they are with obligations to the internationalist Establishment, would start seeing that U.S. foreign policy is deeply flawed, and has been since 1917. But they bear up under the weight of their "responsibilities" and leave it to The SPOTLIGHT and too few other independent voices to point out the obvious.

The solution is very simple—mind our own business, stay out of other people's affairs, and concentrate on solving our problems at home.

chairman, Nguyen Van Hao, a former deputy prime minister of the former South Vietnamese republic who went on to become a key player in the transformation of South Vietnam as part of a reunified Vietnam, led by a brutal communist regime in Hanoi.

According to Binh, Hao brokered a deal between Brown and Vietnam's top leaders, which included ending U.S. opposition to IMF loans, the lifting of the U.S. trade embargo, normalization of relations with the communist state and ultimately the granting of most favored nation (MFN) trading status.

In return for Brown's services, according to Binh, a bribe of $700,000 was placed in the Singapore branch of a French bank, plus a guarantee of a share of profits to be derived by Vietnam from deals made with U.S. oil companies and other firms, which would follow the lifting of the trade embargo.

Binh told The SPOTLIGHT in his latest interview an additional $300,000 was being provided by Hanoi to pay for the Vietnam Development Corporation's operations in the United States, to facilitate the introduction to Vietnam of U.S. businesses allegedly lined up by Brown.

The alleged deal between Brown and the Vietnamese, as outlined in the previous SPOTLIGHT exclusives, appears to be right on schedule because the U.S. media, with the exception of The SPOTLIGHT, does not choose to expose Clinton administration corruption.

CLINTON MET DEADLINE

In order to coincide with a meeting of the IMF governing board on July 12 that would consider the French-Japanese deal to pave the way for new loans for Vietnam, Clinton needed to suspend U.S. opposition to the IMF loans before that meeting, which was accomplished with his July 2 announcement.

If the timetable continues on track, Clinton will next announce the suspension of the U.S. trade embargo when it comes up for annual renewal in mid-September.

Then full diplomatic relations with Vietnam and the granting of MFN trade status will follow, Binh said.

Clinton on July 1 went through the charade of meeting with representatives of seven leading U.S. veterans organizations and two POW-MIA family groups at the White House to "consult" with them about the impending deadline to make a decision about the IMF loans.

Representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW), American Legion, Amvets, Vietnam Veterans of America, Disabled American Veterans, American Ex-POWs and the Retired Officers Association attended, along with the National Alliance of Families for the Return of America's Missing Servicemen and the National League of Families of Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN

Representing the administration at the meeting were Clinton, Vice President Al Gore, Assistant Secretary of State Winston Lord, Assistant Defense Secretary William Pendley, National Security Adviser Anthony Lake, Deputy National Security Adviser Sandy Berger, National Security Council Staff Director Nancy Soderberg and White House Communications Director David Gergen.

Only the VFW indicated at the meeting that it favored the IMF loans for Vietnam, a position which has deeply angered thousands of American veterans. The American Legion led the others in opposing any trade concessions to Vietnam until the POW-MIA issue is fully resolved by the communists.

Dolores Alfond, who heads the National Alliance of Families, left Clinton "red faced and uncomfortable" when she presented her opinions at the meeting, one source told The SPOTLIGHT.

"Mr. President," she said, "if you grant IMF funding, then you will, in the view of my membership and the National Alliance of Families, be putting a bullet in the brain of each of the U.S. POWs Vietnam holds. I mean that in a very literal sense, because the Vietnamese will be well on their way to every advantage diplomatic recognition bestows, and keeping the prisoners would be a liability, while releasing them would only ensure the IMF funding was denied.

PROBLEM SOLVER

"Therefore, killing the POWs will solve the Vietnamese's problem," she said, looking directly at the president, "and it will solve the U.S. government's political problem the POWs pose . . . However, I and my membership will view that action as a total betrayal of your promise to the families."

On several occasions, and in numerous letters to family members and POW-MIA activists, Clinton pledged before and after taking office that he would not make any move to aid Vietnam until the issue was resolved.

"It is our hope," the alliance director told Clinton, "that you keep your promise and your 'real commitments,' as you said, to the families . . .

"However, unless I hear something otherwise today, and if you grant IMF funds, then I am going to tell the press your commitments mean nothing, and that you have totally betrayed the families.

"Furthermore, Mr. President, I can assure you that when you betray a promise which family members believe may have cost the lives of their loved ones, then you can be sure those people will be very vocal about it to the press, and will very likely do everything in their power to see you are not elected again."

Referring to a confrontation Clinton's predecessor, George Bush, had while attending a meeting of families in Washington last year, in which he told a group of frustrated mothers and wives of the missing, shouting for him to tell the truth, to "shut up and sit down," she concluded by stating: "It is just that the family members' patience with broken promises is at an all-time low, and if you give Vietnam the IMF funds, what happened to Bush when he spoke at our convention last year could very well start happening to you."

Nevertheless, the following day, right on schedule, Clinton announced he was ending U.S. opposition to IMF loans for Hanoi.

He claimed that allowing the IMF loans offered the "best hope of providing America's POW-MIA families the answers and peace of mind they deserve."

Plans for Billions in Investments

over of South Vietnam in 1975).

Colliers International, through a partner firm, Colliers Jardines of Singapore, has put together a massive plan which will allow heavy transport ships to dock at Vung Tau, a recreational area for U.S. troops during the Vietnam War.

According to C. Stewart Forbes, chief executive officer of Colliers International, the project will take four years to complete and is currently the largest investment scheme under way in Vietnam.

"I think this represents the best elements of brokerage, matching a need—in this case a country—with the money and the capability," Forbes told the Boston Herald. "This kind of infrastructure is sorely needed in Vietnam."

According to Forbes, work at Vung Tau will be done primarily by Japanese engineering and construction firms.

Although direct U.S. investment in Vietnam is illegal until the Clinton administration lifts the trade embargo against the communist state, Forbes said the Colliers deal is legal because it was done through a foreign partner, Colliers Jardines.

The SPOTLIGHT has been told, although it has not been confirmed, that the Singapore branch of the French Banque Indosuez is involved in the financial end of the giant port project.

According to Vietnamese-American businessman Ly Tranh Binh, the Vietnamese government has allegedly deposited $700,000 in the Singapore branch of the French bank as partial payment for U.S. Commerce Secretary Ron Brown's alleged efforts to get the Clinton administration to drop the U.S. trade embargo, which will likely take place in September (see accompanying story on page 1).

A large number of U.S. industrial giants, including Kodak, Boeing and Du Pont, have already opened offices in Vietnam in anticipation of the lifting of the embargo.

'LOGICAL' PLAN

"I visited Vietnam in December," Forbes said. "Upon my return we announced the opening of an office in Ho Chi Minh City by Colliers Jardines."

He explains further: "Colliers Jardines, a joint venture between Colliers International Australia and Jardine Matheson, a Bermuda-based company with its principal holdings in Hong Kong, has secured a license to conduct real estate-related services in Vietnam."

Regarding the issue of American POWs and MIAs, Forbes said: "While greatly respecting the commitment of the men and women who served in Vietnam, particularly the sacrifice of those who did not return, we are preparing for the embargo to be lifted and wish to encourage that process."

Forbes is a cousin of Sen. John Forbes Kerry (D-Mass.), who served as chairman of the Senate Select Committee on POW and MIA Affairs and frequently used the committee as a forum to encourage the lifting of the trade embargo and/or normalization of relations with Vietnam.

Kerry was a strong advocate of rapprochement with Vietnam long before he was named to the select committee.

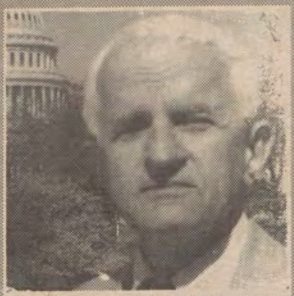
A decorated Vietnam vet, Kerry quit the Navy during the war to become an anti-war activist, serving as a leader of the radical Vietnam Veterans Against the War.

Kerry, according to his Senate financial disclosure forms, is a beneficiary of three "blind" trusts, which were created in 1965. Members of the Forbes family are trustees of all three.

Stewart Forbes states that he has "never discussed this matter [the Colliers interest in Vietnam] with Sen. Kerry nor anyone on his staff."

Liberty Lobby Reports

By Vince Ryan



Good Friend Returns

Trish Katson is back.

The popular onetime legislative director for Liberty Lobby has returned to Capitol Hill after pursuing other interests for the past few years.

Miss Katson will again work for Liberty Lobby and the Board of Policy (BOP) as a special consultant.

Longtime BOP members remember Miss Katson for her work in crisscrossing the United States testifying before state legislatures that were considering a resolution supporting a national Constitutional convention.

Carrying out the wishes of the BOP, Miss Katson articulated our position against any convention which would open the door to a complete rewrite of our Constitution.

She carefully developed the thesis that those in and out of Congress who were advocating a convention ostensibly to enact a balanced budget amendment to the present Constitution were merely using the deficit as a ploy to rewrite the entire document. She further noted that these same people favor a parliamentary form of government as is found in Britain and on the European continent.

Because of Trish's euthusiastic and dedicated leadership, and fully backed by Liberty Lobby and The SPOTLIGHT, the "Con con" call was stopped. It is now coming up again in Michigan for another vote.

Trish will be taking the lobbying reins from the highly respected legislative team of Clinton Ray Miller and Bonnie Kay Miller. Their No. 1 project and that of Liberty Lobby has been the enactment of legislation in Congress calling for a reform and audit of the Federal Reserve System.

As SPOTLIGHT readers know, the Fed is not federal at all but a private institution that has received the money monopoly from Congress.

Rep. Phil Crane (R-Ill.) has a bill in Congress (H.R. 1468) calling for an audit. And Rep. Henry Gonzalez (D-Texas), chairman of the Banking Committee, likewise has a bill (H.R. 28) for Fed reform.

ANOTHER ISSUE

Liberty Lobby has always opposed free trade (a misnomer), and has been fighting this banker scheme since the early 1960s. The issue is now before the people in the form of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA; see the series of stories on NAFTA beginning on page 12). Gus Stelzer, a retired General Motors executive, has shown how it not only will harm the country but is by its very nature un-Constitutional.* This is another area in which Miss Katson will be very active.

Without your support we would be able to do nothing.

So let us hear from you BOP members on our latest proposed legislative position on foreign aid. Your ballot is found in the green Liberty Letter that came with the July 5 issue of The SPOTLIGHT.

Your vote is vital. It can literally change the course of history.

Those of you who are not BOP members and would like to vote on the important issues facing America, let me know.

It's only your tax money "they" are spending. Don't you think it's time to join with others and fight for America First?

Remember. Your influence counts. Use it. ●

Free Trade and the Constitution* by Gus R. Stelzer ($2.50) and the special NAFTA issue of The SPOTLIGHT (10 for $3, 25 for $5) are available from Liberty Library, 300 Independence Ave. SE, Washington, D.C. 20003.
