-- C-SPAN'S "AMERICA & THE COURTS" LOOKS AT POST-BURGER SUPREME COURT --
-- Judicial Experts/Journalists Appear in Ten-Hour Supreme Court Special --

WASHINGTON, D.C.-- As the first Monday in October draws near, so too does the traditional start of a new Supreme Court session and C-SPAN cable network plans more than 10 hours of pre-term coverage.

On Sunday, October 5th, C-SPAN begins its latest installment of "America & the Courts" -- a continuing series focusing on the judiciary -- with an extended look at the highest court in the nation. Former solicitor general Rex Lee -- who will be one of the first attorneys to argue before the Supreme Court this term -- appears on a live viewer call-in program at 6:00 pm ET. Immediately following, at 7:00 pm ET, is an hour-long interview with renowned Harvard Law School professor Laurence Tribe.

At 8:00 pm ET, C-SPAN's 90-minute "The Week Ahead" program examines the '86-87 Supreme Court term. The Washington Legal Foundation's director of litigation, George Smith, is one of three guests who will respond to viewer questions and comments during the live discussion/call-in program.

On Monday, October 6th, C-SPAN's two-day Supreme Court special continues at 8:30 am ET with Congressional Quarterly Supreme Court correspondent Elder Witt appearing on a live viewer call-in. Other Supreme Court reporters discuss the impact of the Rehnquist court and the issues likely to dominate the high court's agenda this term during a taped roundtable airing at 8:30 pm ET.

C-SPAN's "America & the Courts" segment also includes an exclusive telecast of a Harvard law class on Civil Procedures, conducted by Prof. Arthur Miller; a call-in with two Article III judges; and video vignettes on several of the 100 cases on the court's docket this term.
