Dear Mr. Lamb

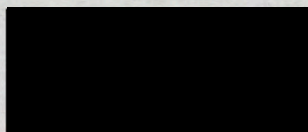

It would be most interesting to have Naom Chomsky as your guest on book review. I have read a number of his books. This one paints a pessimistic picture for our future. It would be fascinating to have you discuss his reasons with him.

Your coverage of the Normandy Beaches is excellent. I lived in London during that time, and we could hear the Allied bombers leaving and the German bombers coming each night - and leave London in rubble.

Thank you and keep up the great coverage.

P.S. I am a C-SPAN addict.

The Real Story Series is based on a simple idea—political books don't have to be boring. Short, well-written and to the point, Real Story books are meant to be read.

Noam Chomsky is one of America's most popular speakers, electrifying standing-room-only audiences all over the country as he dissects US foreign policy with insights like these:

- Contrary to what virtually everyone—left or right—says, the United States achieved its major objectives in Indochina. Vietnam was demolished. There's no danger that successful development there will provide a model for other nations in the region.
- At exactly the moment it invaded Panama...the Bush administration announced new high-technology sales to China [and] plans...to lift a ban on loans to Iraq....Compared to Bush's buddies in Baghdad and Beijing, Noriega looked like Mother Teresa.
- Prospects are pretty dim for Eastern Europe. The West has a plan for it—they want to turn large parts of it into a new, easily exploitable part of the Third World.
