

2244-90

JUN 25 REC'D

Madison, D.C. 57042
June 18, 1990

JUN 25 ANS'D

Dear Sirs:

I have just finished watching your thought provoking[?] program with Cohen & Kincaid about media coverage.

I have always thought of myself as a fairly fair-minded conservative individual, but I can certainly say I didn't think either one represented the liberal or conservative point of view of the average American citizen today.

Every program brought up and branded by either is not looked at, or thought of by most as they stated. Every one is thought of by most as a pure bunch of radicals trying to brainwash the American public to their way of thinking, and not in the least in helping with the frame of mind of most.

And that's the trouble in this country today, and why most ignore the polls anymore, so bother less and less with them, which is a shame, when this is supposed to be the longest existing seat of democracy.

But what's the use anymore when there's no one to find who really represents your point of view anymore? Just extremist and radical at opposite ends of the spectrum pulling and tugging at each other.

One might as well stand on the sidelines to see who'll end up falling in the mud in their dirty battle of tug-o-war so that you can finally get a good belly-laugh at at least one of them as you know that will be that much less for you to have to battle so that eventually you may be heard.

Sincerely

P.S. Now you know who the "they" are that we are constantly asked about !!