Sorely the on-going coverage of the presidential investigation will bring some reward to TV viewers.

With culture change and a shift in sexual mores for over 30 years little clucking was heard from the "X" generation when a member, in the role of a hon, takes off in hot pursuit. And the close encounter that follows at the White House evidenced a wide disparity in age, rank and position. Aye, there's the rub, for society still gives top priority to good sportsmanship; holding the individual responsible for consequences of his/her behavior. This facet is also the fundamental principle of sex education -

When the dust settles from the bro ha ha, perhaps some important family values and the moral fiber of society will be revived.
