Ref: C-SPAN looks at the North

Dear Editor,

I wish to commend C-Span for its recent program on northern Ireland (aired in September) during which it attempted to present all sides and permitted the protagonists (antagonists?) to speak for themselves. Urge you to continue such coverage. Considering how censored the news in the Irish Free State and Britain is, you really made a great statement by interviewing all sides. In the future, might I also suggest interviewing someone like Robert Heatley of Campaign for Democracy. Mr. Heatley is a Protestant Nationalist. His views might startle some who for years have only been fed Protestant=Loyalist and Catholic=Nationalist stereotypes. He is a lecturer from Belfast.

Additionally, I would like to order a copy of the video of the program (or ~~the~~ several videos - owing to the several hour length of the program). This will prove an invaluable tool in trying to illuminate persons who, as an American-Irish activist, come into contact with. I realize that the cost may be high - as you aren't a video dealer by trade - but I'm willing to pay it.

Thank you again for a wonderful program. It will take a lot to bring the nature of the longest running war in Europe home to the masses but you've certainly helped put the truth forward.

Sincerely,
