Am a regular viewer and till now have resisted the feeling of urgency to make comments. However, you are obviously struggling with the issue of fairness to your viewers success in getting past your switchboard.

For myself, with over fifty years education and experience in teaching objectivity, your solution should not be something you should be struggling with. Your policy of accepting callers based on political affiliation is absolutely biased. It is as biased and discriminatory as affirmative action. For you to retain your credibility you must resist and avoid giving the perception that any particular opinion of your viewers is one that prevails. The concept that there is equality in this country was never meant to be equality for political parties, but to equality for the individual.

Respectfully,
