C-SPAN
400 No. Capitol St.
Washington, D.C. 20001

I watch C-Span because it has reduced the 3,000 mile distance from my living room to the nation's capitol to three feet, the steps from our couch to the TV set. Now, I am more aware and better informed on what is happening in Washington that effects us all. On the political scene, C-Span presents the candidates in a three-dimensional view. Newspapers, magazines and commercial television are fine but there isn't anyway they can provide the coverage C*Span does by presenting the Washington news as it is happening by the leaders making it happen. C-Span provides a great public service and when it comes to the media is in a class by itself owing allegiance only to the fortunate viewers. The only complaint I have with C-Span is that in our area we don't have more viewing hours.
