Dear Mr. Lamb,

I try not to wince when the C Span bus on your channel.

Booknotes is a delight most Sundays. We do read the books.

When the college teacher who originated the bus idea was on with you, I was amazed that a college administration (and the parents would allow this charming immature adult to take students away from their studies on a lark to Graceland, Las Vegas and other fun places. How clever of him to have cameras set up for the take-off.

So here we are with the most respected segment on television following suit:

Somehow, I find myself less interested in turning on C-Span. There seems to be a change in focus.

But - I'll be there most Sunday evenings. How about getting William Manchester?

Sincerely -
