

Barah

cc: S. Trahern ✓

002722 JUN 491

I have been a viewer of CSpan for some years now but of late I have been not tuning in because despite your long standing disclaimers concerning those calling in to your panel portions ~~as~~ not being Regulars, or of one particular opinion, ~~let~~ I find in recent times ^{that} I keep hearing the same identical voices, from the same locales, using the exact same rhetoric almost every day. It is obvious that somehow, somehow there is a certain group of you callers who are bypassing your rules or else someone on your staff is simply allowing the rules to be broken or some political group is being extremely adept at using your call in to get their opinions aired every day so your audience will then believe that a sizable portion of your audience is of the same opinion as those calling because of the frequency of their calls.

JUN 18 ANS'D

I have for years now looked on CSpan as a truly non-partisan forum as well as a window on the Congressional activities for interested viewers. But if it is going to become simply another forum for special interest groups then forget it. We get enough of that from the rest of the media, both print and electronic, today. Good bye —

400 N. Capital St 650
W. D.C.

20001

Brian Lamb
% C. Spau
400 North Capitol St. #650
Washington, DC, 20001

[REDACTED]
Orlando, FL 32806

L6

60

50

100