Dear person -

This note comes to thank you for C-Span's programming, but especially to thank you for "Booknotes." My husband and I are retired librarians although I still act as librarian for the library here at our retirement home. Without books, the world would be a dreary place. But books truly are windows on the world and thus permit light and sunshine to enter our minds.

And, I must tell you too, of another resident here and a very close friend. She is 86 and is unable to see. Her reading is from L.C.'s talking books. She very much enjoys "Booknotes" and it gives us such a good base for discussion.

8-BK, BEST

If this is not too late to be counted for the re-play requests, our choices are Hendrickson's The Living and the Dead and Mothers of Invention - about the southern women during the Civil War.

If C-Span has a mailing list to tell of programs or any other information, please add my name and address to it.

One other item -- "About Books" this past Sunday with Halberstam, Noonan, & Foote at L.C. was a marvelous program.

Thanks again.

Sincerely,
