Question concerns the availability of priorly published listing of broadcast times for various programs. I know that you periodically show a flash card schedule of programs on the day the program is to be telecast. But do you have a priorly published listing of the program schedule? My day is such that it's very difficult to "catch" the daily update; one seems to need to be a continual listener for that to be a possibility and I'm not in that position. For instance, I would like to follow the programming on presidential homes and life, but I'm not able to consistent by "catch" one of these scheduled flash cards in time to make any adjustments to my reading capability.
