I am very disappointed, first, that you spent one whole morning reading the entire Sally Quinn article, and then spending another entire morning rehashing the thing with Sally Quinn herself.

This brings me to my single, but huge, complaint about C-span. C-Span is a bunch of media people celebrating themselves. Way too many of C-spans guests are journalists expressing their own personal opinions which you seem to think are more

valid simply because held by people who work in journalism. Pumping out articles for a living does not qualify as experts those who are so employed. You, of course, will never get this.
Sally Quinn is not a special person in any way merely because she is a staff writer for the Washington Post.
I thoroughly enjoyed C-span's coverage during the few days before the election because it was about something other than Monica.
Please go back to that.

one final point. The mantra of the Clinton basher is that "this is not about sex," ~~that~~ it's about lying to the people." But I noticed that

Sally Quinn was nonplused when asked why she puts this in a different light than Keagan & Bush's lying about Iran Contra etc. She had no answer.

The fact is this: Had the president sworn in a deposing deposition that he had never drunk red wine in the ~~great~~ oval office, production of video tapes showing that he often drank red wine in the oval office would produce no press and no
"referral" for impeachment.
So, of course, it is about sex. So quit flogging it in public.

P.S. THANKS
FOR CRISPIN
SARTWELL

Very Truly Yours
