Mr. Brian Lamb.

You got a pretty nice write-up in one of the news magazines. Time's Aug 24th issue, by Nancy Traver. Cable should be so proud of C-span, because of the fine work that C-span does. I think C-span is probably the only part of Cable TV that isn't under fire. Your coverage of the conventions made the commercial networks look silly except for PBS. Thanks for your good coverage.

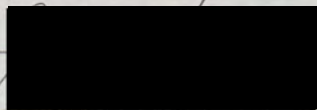

I noticed you flashed Ross Perot's "United We Stand" on the screen this morning and asked about the future sales of the book. In my opinion, the journalists you had on this morning are mistaken about the book, because I tried to buy the book from both Waldenbooks and Dalton and no one has it yet, but the clerks said they have been getting requests for over three days for the book. Wait for a week or two.

Another thing that some of the inside the beltway journalists ought to pay a little attention to, is the Ross Perot movement. Many of them think that all of the Perot supporters have gone over to one or the other of the two major parties. Some have, but if you check outside the beltway you will see that Mr. Perot is now on 47 state ballots and his supporters are going to have an impact on the next election in November.

To change the subject, a good man to have on your "booknotes" would be Brian Kelly, the author of "Adventures in Parkland." His book is supposed to be out in September. I think it might shake Congress up a little more. Congratulations again on the excellent coverage. You guys make the other networks look like amateurs.

Sincerely
