

Feb. 18, 1994

C-Span
Capitol St. N.W.
Washington, DC 20001

Dear Sirs:

My husband and I enjoy listening to C-Span every day.

This morning
Robin Wright of the Los Angeles Times made the statement the reason Japan is not purchasing cars from the United States is because the American car companies cannot produce right hand drive.

Robin seems like a bright and smart young lady but she can learn something new and that is, that General Motors, and the other car companies do produce cars for export with right hand drive and have been for many years.

There were two other people on the program and neither one said anything on this subject and the writer has been wondering if they were of the same opinion as Robin. Would you please advise this dear lady of the above.

Thank you.

Sincerely

Age 80

Laurensville, GA 30243

C-Span,
Capitol Bldg. N.W.
Washington, DC 20001