Mr. Lamb:

I watch C-Span on occasion and generally find the programs informative and enlightening.

While watching your program on May 6 featuring "journalists" and their opinions on various subjects, it again occurred to me that all these panels of "experts" on such programs as yours, "Meet the Press," "Nightline," etc., are almost always liberals. If a conservative is on a panel, he or she is always outnumbered and often unable to be heard because of a loudmouthed liberal or Democrat,

It appears the moderators or hosts of these programs try so hard to remain neutral in the discussions, but the fact that this inequity exists gives rise to question such neutrality. The media continues to deny a bias toward liberalism, but the facts speak for themselves.
