Dear Mr. Lamb:

Sorry I don't know your title, or I would have used it. I suspect you may be the chief cook and bottle washer, as well as jack-of-all-trades. I see you almost every time I tune the network in.

A month or two ago, you carried some panel discussions about the media by some members of the media, of course. That way they only take it as deep as they choose, and don't suffer the slings and arrows from the public!

During one of the panels, one participant quoted a book written by a Susan Long or Wong, or something that sounds like that. It was an expose about the IRS, and the title was something like "Agency Out Of Control." I can't be more specific as it was passed by rather quickly, and not mentioned again. Those on the panel seemed to all be familiar with the book, as no one dug any deeper, and I may have it all wrong, as it is all I heard.

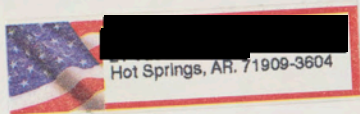

I made a note of what I got, and went to the book store. No luck under those entries in books in print. Next, the library for a search in their files and computer bank. I thought someone there might remember the book, but no luck in any memory bank, human or machine. I tried a large used book store in a large city--struck out again.

All have told me, "if you have the right title and/or author, perhaps we can help. but if you are unsure-----well!"

How about you or your staff? Can someone there come up with the proper title or author? I'm sunk, and want to give this book to a close friend who has trouble with the IRS every year!

It is a given that you people do some very good work! Public radio and TV are certainly shot through with left leaners, and we get no truth or accuracy from them. I firmly believe the public is much better informed through your good offices, than anything else that comes from the Funny Farm on the Potomac. I watched the entire Base Closure and Realignment Commission proceedings. Where else could be seen those decisions affecting the lives of millions?

Sincerely,
[REDACTED]
